Garlinghouse "YOUR NEW HOME PLANS"

The plans shown in this book represent only a fraction of the total number of designs which are available to you. We have 22 different plan books listed on the inside back cover of this book and in them are more than 1,200 designs from which you may choose the one you wish to build.

Order Your Plans This Simple, Easy Way!

We have available to you the complete working plans, specifications, lumber and mill lists for the designs shown in this book and all of our other books (listed on the inside back cover) at the prices listed with the design ($7.50 to $25 per set). Your plans will be in the mail within 24 hours after we receive your order. Here's what you get:

PLANS—The complete working plans consist of blue prints of all four elevations, basement and all floor plans and details showing built-in features and intricate parts, all drawn to a scale of not less than one-fourth inch to one foot. Also, a plot plan in blank to be filled in locally.

SPECIFICATIONS—The specifications explain in detail the construction of the house from the excavation to the interior decoration.

LUMBER AND MILL LISTS—The lumber and mill lists consist of an itemized list of lumber and mill materials needed to construct the building and state where each item should be used.

No. 6445—A skillful combination of materials is used to create an extremely pleasing exterior for this three-bedroom bungalow. The floor plan is arranged to make it possible for a person to go from practically any room in this house to another without crossing through any other room. The central hall provides an entrance vestibule with a convenient guest wrap closet. All of the bedrooms, the living room, and the kitchen have excellent cross-ventilation.

No. 6238

No. 6238—For the family with a moderate housing budget here is a design which meets every test of attractiveness, convenience, and economy. The vertical siding framing the entrance and the window grouping can form the basis for individuality in exterior decorating. The L-shaped living-dining room has many possibilities for interesting decorative schemes and furniture arrangements. There are numerous built-ins for added convenience, such as the corner China cabinet, the dressing table in the bath, the clothes chute leading to the basement laundry, etc.

No. 6344

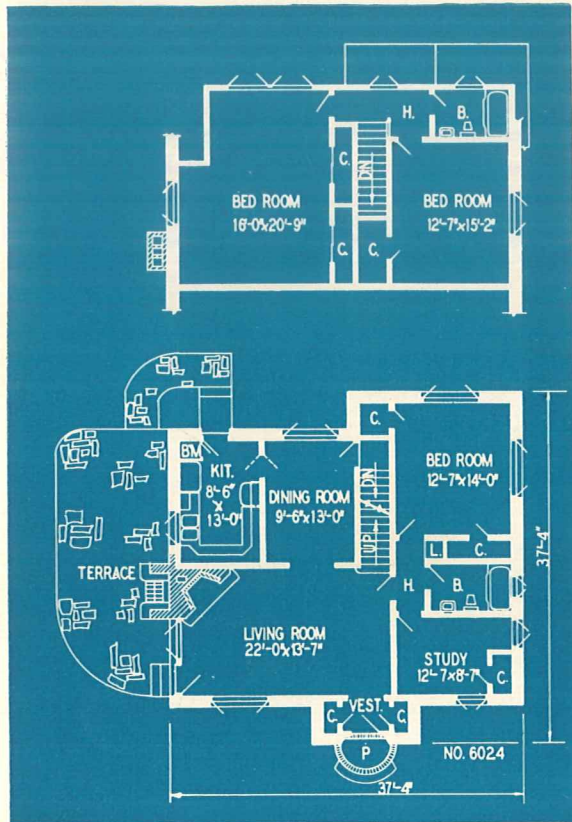

No. 6344—In this attractive three-bedroom house the living-dining room has been placed to the rear in order to take advantage of the opportunity for combined indoor-outdoor living offered by having a secluded terrace as an apparent part of the room. French doors open onto the terrace, and large windows take up the rest of the wall area. There is no basement. The utility room is for laundry and storage purposes, with the heater and hot water tank being located in an alcove behind the fireplace so that they may be connected to the same chimney.

No. 6024

No. 6024—Seven rooms and two full baths are included in this story-and-a-half design despite the fact it appears to be a much smaller house. The room arrangement provides for splendid division of the house into three main areas of use—the living and entertaining section, the bedrooms, and the kitchen-dining room section.

No. 6091—The difficult task of maintaining pleasing proportions in a house built on a sharply sloping lot has been well handled in this pleasant, shingled cottage. The library or bedroom over the double garage is a half-story above the remainder of the house. The large bow window across the rear of the dining-living room adds charm both to the interior and the exterior.

No. 6243—Transom windows for the bedroom and a high window for the bath assure privacy in this cleverly-designed house even though these rooms are located at the front, with the living room being placed at the rear. Brick-veneer is used only across the front. Glass blocks form the wall between the entry and the dining room to lighten that hall. Seven large closets are provided.

No. 6126

No. 6126—This eight room Colonial home has many noteworthy features. Each of the four bedrooms is of generous size and ample closet space has been provided throughout the entire house. The central hall plan makes each room easily accessible from either the front or the rear door. The kitchen and breakfast nook are sufficiently large that automatic laundry equipment could be placed here without creating any inconvenience. The baths are skillfully located not only to serve the bedrooms, but also the rest of the house. There are built-in book cases flanking the fireplace.

No. 6087

No. 6087—In this concrete block house attention has been given to keeping the construction costs at a low level while employing eye-pleasing brick trim around the recessed entrance, the windows, and corners at the front of the house. Furring strips are used to provide air space between the blocks and the interior plaster, and wooden sub-floors are specified. The living-dining room offers possibilities of attractive decorative treatment in the window alcove and has ample space for dining facilities. The remainder of the house is extremely compact, offering maximum housing for minimum cost.

No. 6060—A farm-house-sized kitchen, large bedrooms, and an abundance of closet space are featured in this brick-veneered house. The lavatory and shower arrangement is especially convenient in its location since it serves both the bedroom area and the rear of the house. By placing the guest closet as a projection into the living room an entry-way is created without sacrifice of usable floor space because otherwise there would have been so much traffic in that area that furniture arrangement would have been difficult. The basement extends just under the mid-section of the house.

No. 6465—A most appealing exterior for this five-room cottage has been created through the use of a combination of vertical and horizontal siding for the entire front of the house. The interior is quite distinctive, especially the circular breakfast nook which overlooks a graceful planting box. The tub is separated from the rest of the bath by a folding, water-proof curtain. In both bedrooms there are large double closets.

No. 6178

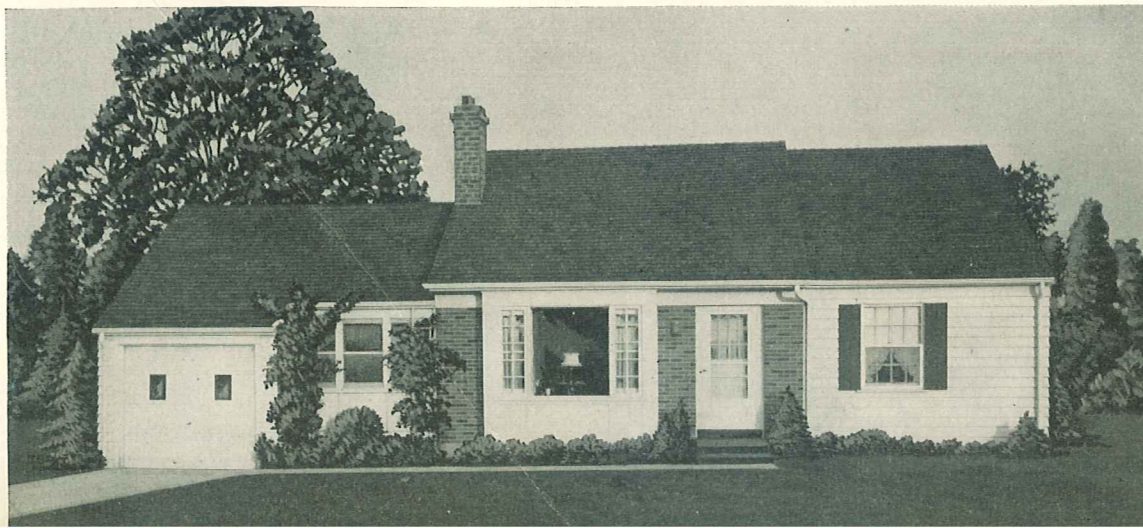

No. 6178—Instead of having a breezeway between the house and the garage this design provides for a combination porch and breakfast room that will be used every day instead of just during warm weather as would be the case with the breezeway. The accordion door makes it possible to have privacy while dining and later to open the entire area for front-to-rear ventilation. There is a "pass-through" opening from the kitchen to the breakfast nook to save many steps while serving informal meals.

No. 6034

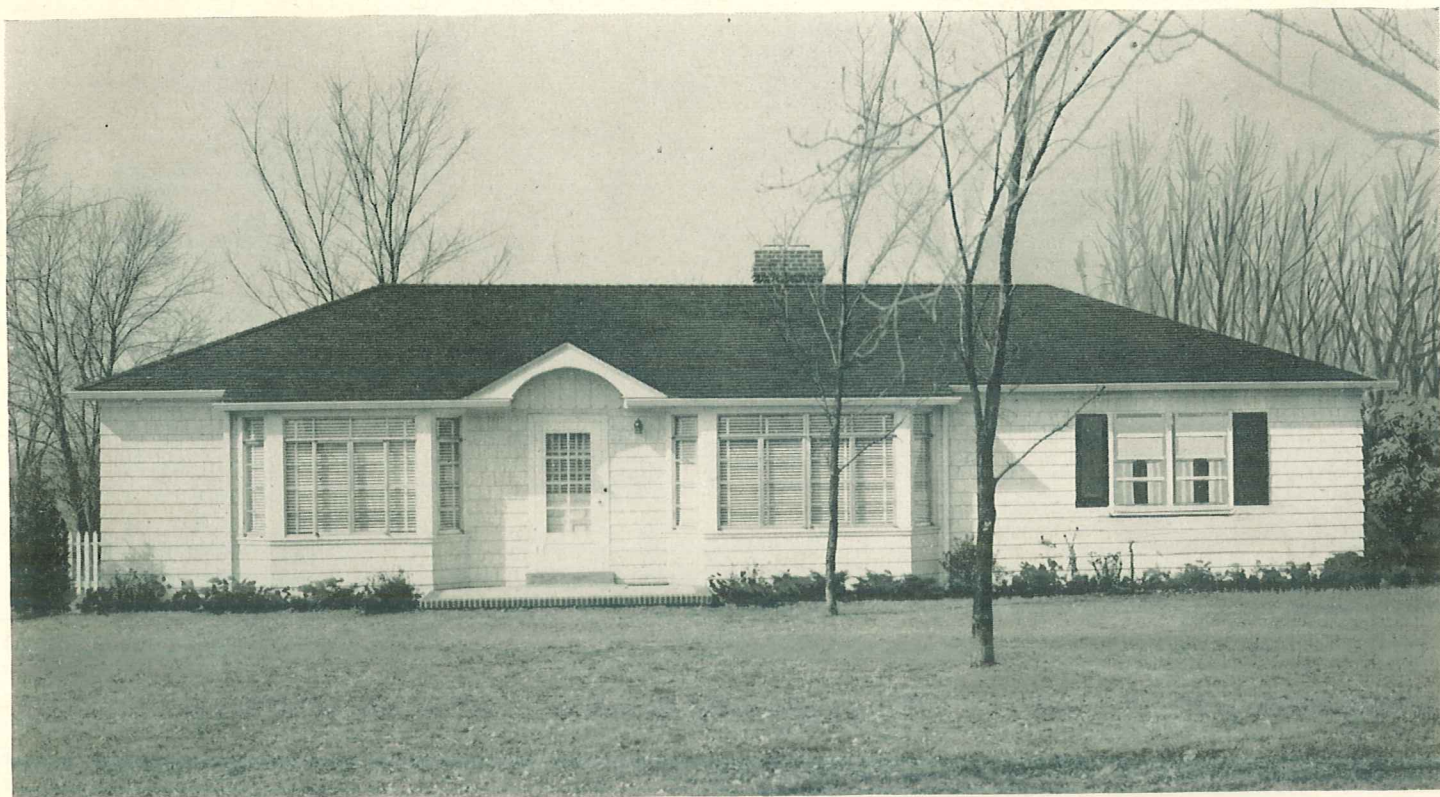

No. 6034—Planned as a luxurious country home to overlook a broad expanse of lawn, this house has three immense bedrooms and a superabundance of closet space. Depending upon the family requirements the bedrooms could be used as combination bedroom-playroom for the children, bedroom-sitting room for parents, and as a private apartment for a guest. The storage closets on the second floor marked "C.C." are cedar lined clothes closets. The central hall plan, as always, makes for an extremely convenient house where the various rooms are easily reached with a minimum of cross-traffic through other rooms.

No. 6334

No. 6334—This attractive rambling type home is in a peacefully quiet and restful atmosphere. There are six rooms, a complete bath and two additional lavatories, and three special storage closets in addition to those in the bedrooms. The stairs lead to a large basement which is complete with heating, laundry, and recreation facilities. Construction is of shingles with a wooden shingle roof. Although the bay windows are of the casement type other windows are conventional double-hung sash.

The living area required will depend upon various factors including the number in the family, the age of the various members, whether or not you entertain extensively, whether you have household help, what musical instruments are owned and used—such as piano, radio, etc., the hobbies of the different members of the family, if the present furniture is to be used or new furniture purchased, and whether there are to be many guests for meals and for sleeping.

No. 6263—Overhanging eaves and eye-pleasing symmetrical exterior features make this an especially attractive brick-veneered home. The room arrangement has been planned virtually to eliminate the need for any hall space, and even that small space serves an added purpose since it provides access to the storage attic through a disappearing stairway. The secluded nook to the rear of the living room could become an ideal small library or study.

No. 6075—This spacious house, constructed of brick veneer, derives its imposing appearance from the massive chimney and the extremely large windows. If the family required a third bedroom the den could be closed from the vestibule and would serve that purpose excellently since it has a closet and is just across the hall from the bath. The casement window for the front bedroom is V-shaped to assure ideal ventilation. The kitchen contains space for the housewife's "office" to be used in planning menus and in organizing household routine.

No. 6439

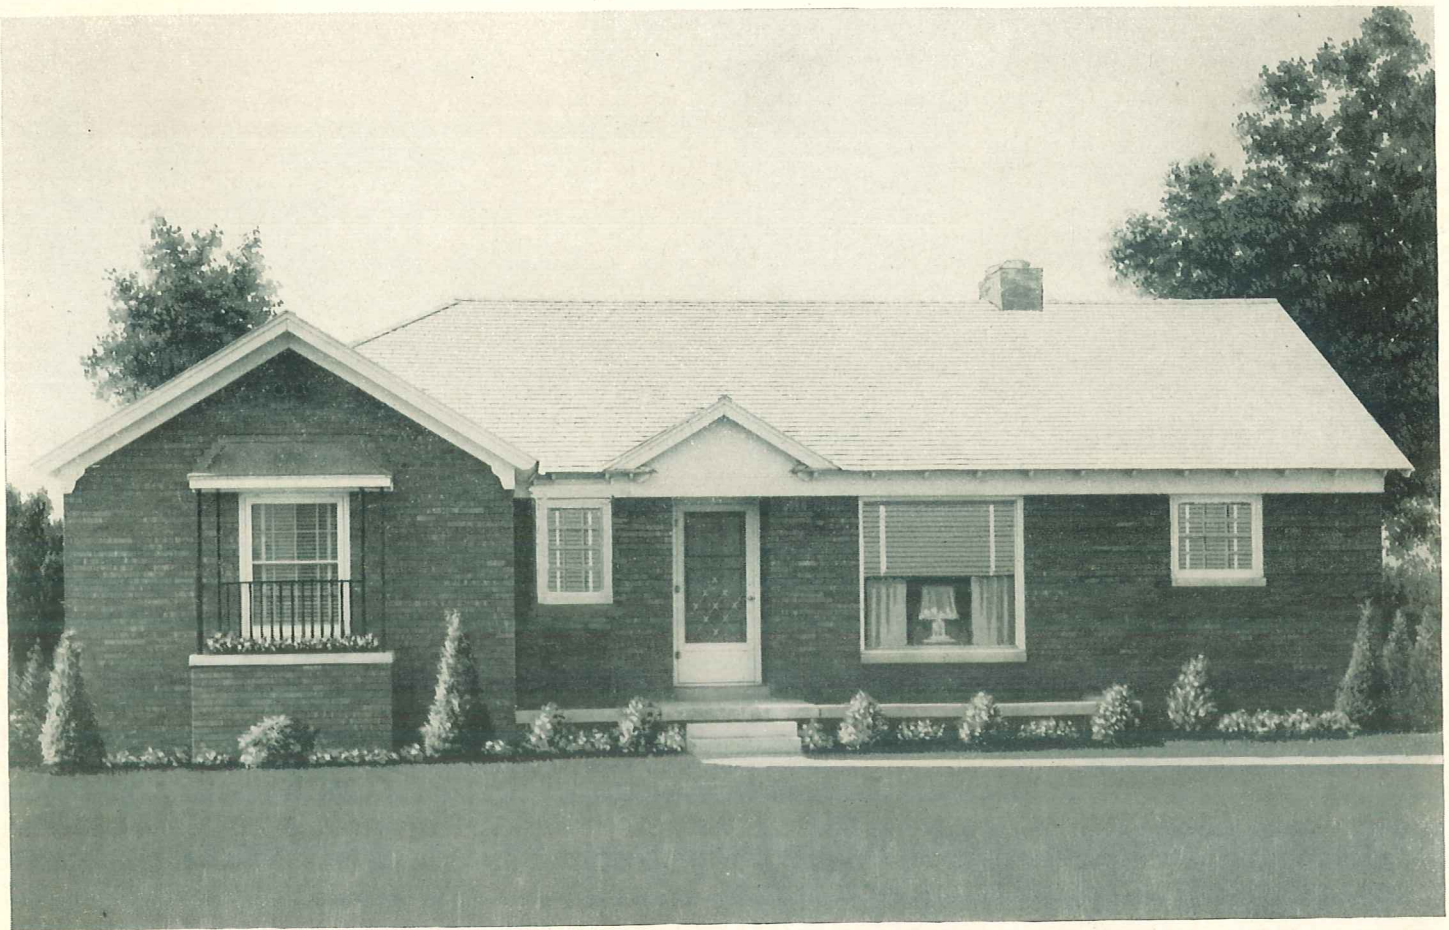

No. 6439—Adapted from Early American styling this seven-room house has an extremely modern and convenient floor plan. It is a house that can grow with the family's needs, for the first floor contains a complete arrangement for a five-room house, making it possible to leave the second floor unfinished until the space is needed at some future time. The front-to-rear hallway system not only is convenient but also aids in eliminating needless traffic through the living and dining room. The area immediately behind the garage would be an ideal location for a terrace.

There is one thing which should be remembered when selecting a plan for your new house. Although you are choosing a home to suit your own needs, it is wise to consider resale possibilities in case you wish to dispose of your property at some future date. In this respect a simple, attractive house, built with care and attention is your best investment in service, satisfaction, and salability.

No. 6078

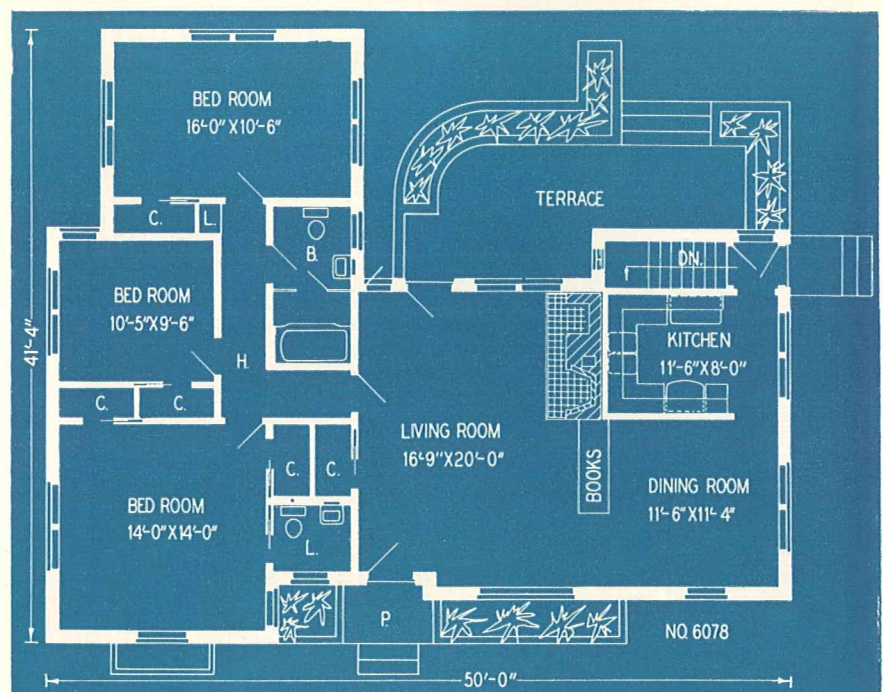

No. 6078—Deceptive in appearance, this attractive brick house contains six amply proportioned rooms and one-and-a-half baths. The living room is especially cheery due to the modern treatment with the Thermopane window in front and three large windows overlooking the terrace to the rear. The dining room, while separated from the living room by the low bookcases, may be used as a part of the living area. The compact U-shaped kitchen is a step-saver. There is a full basement to assure sufficient storage and work space for laundry and hobby activities.

No. 6020

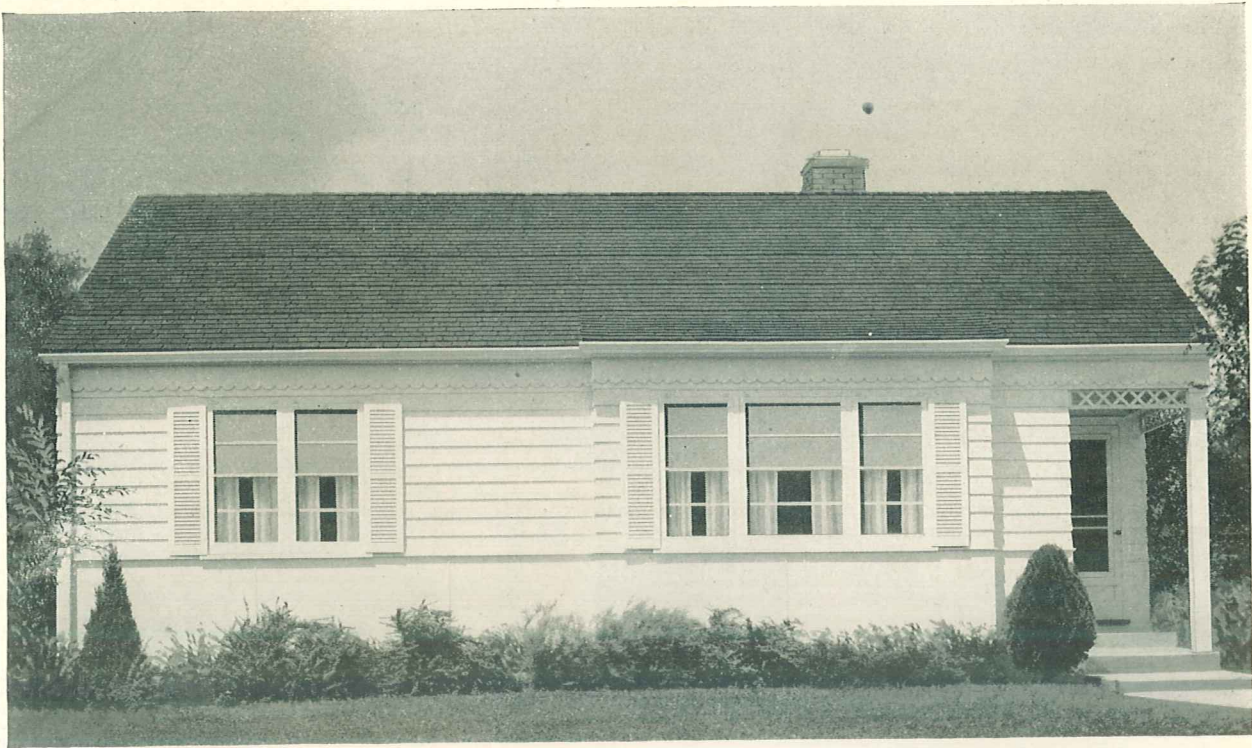

No. 6020—If the family requires a large house on a smaller lot few designs are as practical as the conventional two-story square, frame house shown here in a modern version. Its conveniences are many. The spacious entry hall with its guest closet not only offers an attractive setting for the exposed stairway, but also provides access to the kitchen, leaving the living room free from cross-traffic. Depending upon the owner's preference the rear room can either be a study with built-ins and storage closets or a well-proportioned bedroom. The master bedroom is commodious, with a self-contained bath and two walk-in closets with storage shelves. All bedrooms are especially cheerful since they have four sizeable windows.

The "reverse" of a plan means that the rooms which are shown on the left in the photo and floor diagram would be placed on the right. All dimensions and proportions are retained in the plan as reversed. To obtain the effect of a reversed plan hold the photo to a strong light and look through the rear side. Reverses are provided to allow you to orient the house to suit your lot.

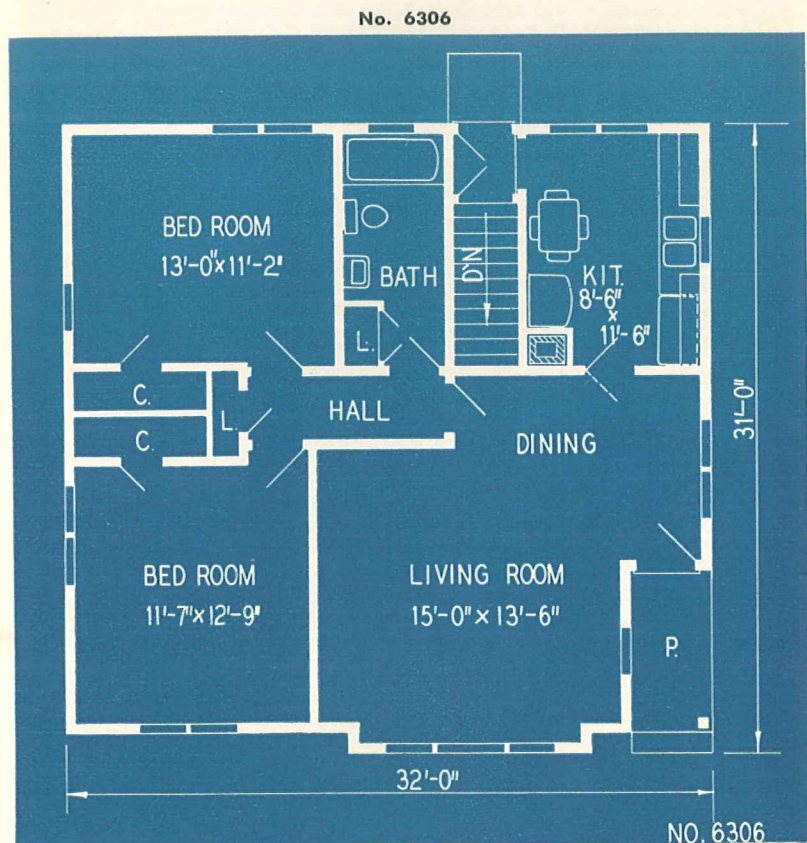

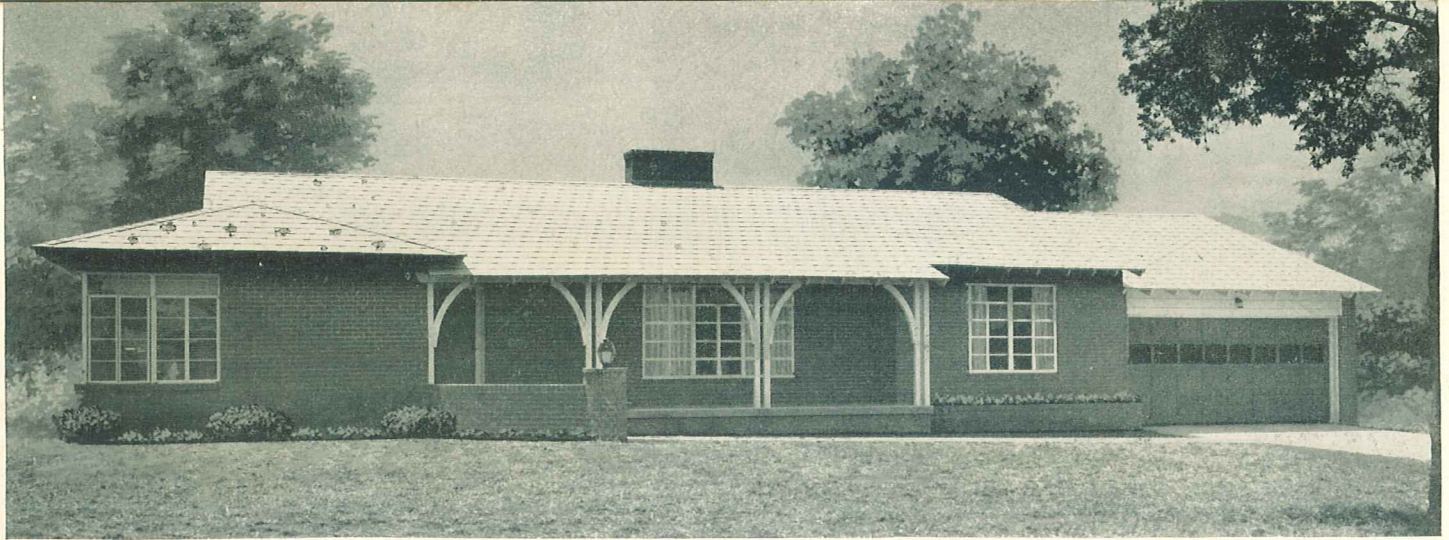

No. 6306—A most attractive variation of the small house has been created in this design through the use of a combination of exterior materials. The horizontal siding tops a plywood base, with a decorative frieze outlined under the eaves. For variety the shingles are laid to produce a series of shadow lines. The interior arrangement is excellent as it allows the living room to be placed so that it has no cross-traffic whatsoever, which is unusual for a small house. There is a full basement.

No. 6298

No. 6298—Excellent wall space for furniture arrangement is a feature of the design for this small house due to the careful planning of the traffic pattern. Both bedrooms are well-proportioned and have double closets. There is a large general-purpose storage closet in addition to the utility room.

No. 6112—This unusual variation of the ranch-style stone house provides numerous convenient features. The bedrooms would be pleasantly lighted and ventilated because of the large corner windows. The closet opening onto the porch is for storage of yard tools and equipment. Because of the width of the garage and the bank of windows on the outside wall it would be possible to construct a workshop in the garage.

No. 6064—White asbestos shingles are used for siding for this three-bedroom bungalow. The low-pitched roofline is emphasized by the six-foot overhang, shown here as a simple shelter, but which easily could be adapted as a full-length porch. The roof is of the built-up type. There is a partial basement.

No. 6153

No. 6153—This compactly-arranged five-room house lends itself especially well to the modern vogue for use of exciting exterior decorative schemes, because the vertical gable can so easily be made either to harmonize with or contrast to the coloring in the horizontal siding and the stone trim. For greater convenience the bath is compartmented. If necessary to do so because of space limitations, the garage could be eliminated.

No. 6347—That the minimum house need not be unattractive is proved in this charming design. The stoop is supported by decorative pillars trimmed by a scalloped frieze. The front bedroom is large enough to accommodate twin beds, a vanity, and a chest-of-drawers.

No. 6347

No. 6429—This house is constructed of concrete “bricks,” so named because they are much smaller than the average concrete block used in residential construction. When used in a modern design such as this hipped-roof five-room suburban, they create an extremely pleasing appearance. This house is excellently arranged for the average small family. The kitchen, with its continuous cupboards, is highly efficient. The front bedroom has two closets of wardrobe size giving an unusual amount of storage space. Casement windows are used throughout.

No. 6258

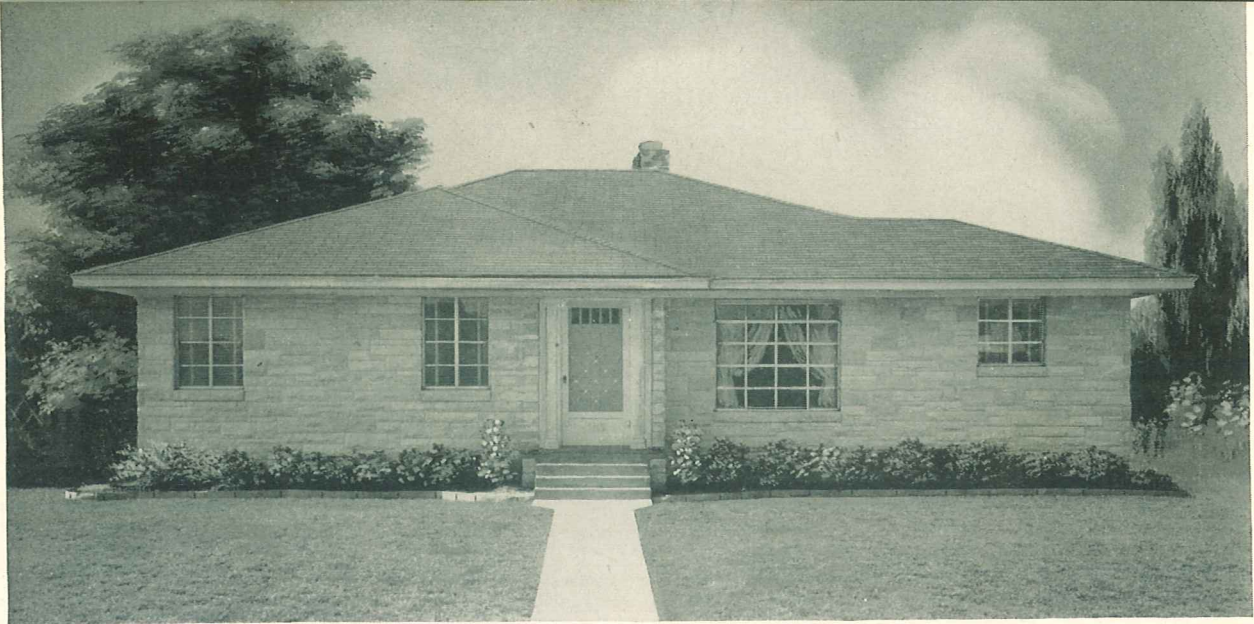

No. 6258—Here is a house that is ideally arranged to fit a moderate construction budget. Its simple lines assure economic construction, yet its interior arrangement is such that it provides for comfortable living in a five-room efficiency house. The U-shaped kitchen has ample dining space for ordinary occasions, and the living room is so large that a portion of it can be used for a dining alcove. Glass blocks are used for the wall opening behind the range to admit additional light to the kitchen. The bedrooms are supplied with a generous amount of closet space.

Minor alterations in design and material substitutions can be handled by any competent builder, without going to the expense of making up special construction plans.

No. 6224

No. 6224—A completely modern interior arrangement has been planned for this distinctive-appearing house constructed of random-laid stone veneer. The flagstone pattern of the terrace is extended into the house to form a hearth. The living-dining room partition is a low shelf that may be used as a bookcase or storage space. The basement is entered through the outside stairway which has a drain at the landing.

No. 6227

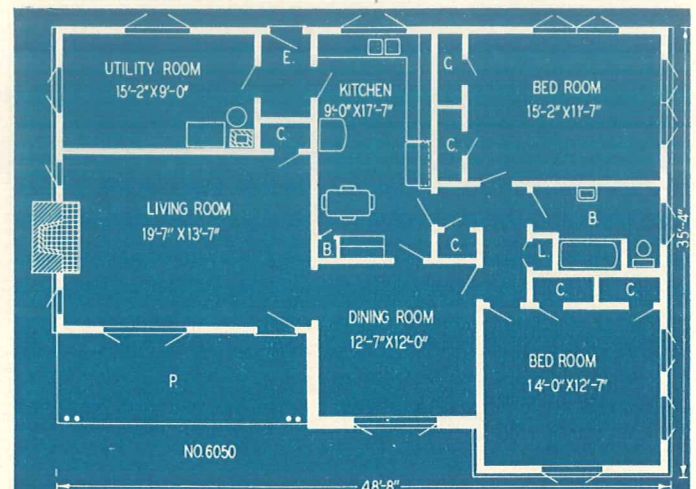

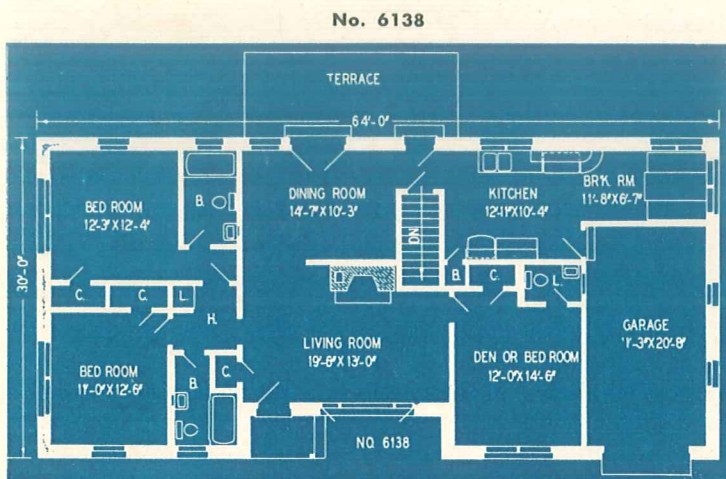

No. 6138—Stone veneer, laid in a random pattern, has been used in the construction of this beautiful six-room suburban home. The floor plan is somewhat flexible to meet varying family requirements. The den, which has a large closet and a half-bath, can be used conveniently as a third bedroom. The rear bedroom has a private bath, but since there is another full bath and a lavatory the owner may prefer to omit this private bath thus enlarging the bedroom to 17 feet, 4 inches in length. French doors open from the dining room to the terrace.

No. 6050—Vertical siding and brick trim have been used to emphasize the beauty of the picture window in this Southern bungalow. The rest of the exterior is of shingle construction. Built over a four-inch concrete slab, this house is suitable for most areas since construction details call for adequate sub-floor insulation and vapor-proofing. The roof is of the built-up type. As both the kitchen and utility room are of generous size there is an abundance of shelf space and work areas are conveniently arranged.

No. 6008

No. 6008—When adapted to a modern floor plan such as this there is a never-failing charm in a Cape Cod design. Equally attractive in an area of single-story houses or story-and-a-half, this Cape Cod has three large bedrooms, two full baths, and generous closet space. Being served by a hallway, the first floor bath is equally accessible from either the kitchen or the bedroom. The central hall with open stairway lends itself to interesting decorative treatment. There is a full basement.

Select Your Fireplace With Full Information

Our top recommendation for year-round satisfaction is the Donley Heatsaver Fireplace, that circulates heat (more than you expect) from outlet grilles that may be placed in the immediate room or other rooms, combining the charm of an open fire with the efficiency of a small furnace . . . Many small homes are adequately heated by the Heatsaver alone. In larger homes it brings comfort during chilly "between" seasons. Burning any solid fuel, it is a godsend when more complicated heating devices fail . . . But if your choice is a simple masonry fireplace, it makes a lot of difference how it is planned and built. The Book of Successful Fireplaces is a standard guide for architects and has brought fireside happiness to thousands of homes . . . Now about outdoor fireplaces — Everyone enjoys hot meals cooked in the open, also a bright evening glow lighting lawn and garden. Outdoor Fireplaces, How to Build Them, tells you how to avoid mistakes and get the most from your barbecue investment.
